Summer job options bring debate over what to do

By Tommy Snyder

Staff Writer

Summer jobs bring money for gas. Summer is a time for fun, and making some new friends. So in my overall opinion, I think a summer job is a good idea. Who knows you could even make some new friends.

Kids usually will pick a easier place to work when they're young so they don't have to work place is a pleasant surprise for a mom. No company, flowers will make a coupon book. This can be hand written. In the coupon book, offer a free car wash or vacuuming the house. Gifts such as these cost little money and will show mom how much she is cared for.

Another easy gift fix is to purchase a few items. Not only will it show how much you want and pick her favorite place. Another easy gift fix is to purchase a year long subscription to a magazine you know she already subscribe to a magazine, pick one that will appeal to her interests. For example, if she enjoys running, try "Runner's World" or if she likes to be in the kitchen, try "Food & Wine". If all else fails, a trip to "Blithely Beautiful pink flowers are on display in the main office. (Bottom) Easy to use Cash Cowbook contains many delicious recipes, and Body Works can go a long way. Pick out a special fragrance like an over-done gift idea, but sending a bouquet of lilies to a work place is a pleasant surprise for a mom. To compsure the flowers, one can make an impromptu recipe book. This all requires a computer. Find some of her favorite recipes or old family dishes that have been passed down, and bind them together to make a nice change.

Preparing for the future: Essential measures to take

By Anjelica Oswald

Copy Editor

Going to college is a very important part of students lives. There are many things to do in order to prepare for this big change.

• Figure out what classes to take the next year.
• Submit scores to colleges
• College Applications
• Submit transcripts to colleges
• College visits
• Concentrate on sports
• College visits
• College Applications
• Improve GPA as much as possible
• Concentrate on sports
• Submit scores to colleges
• Submit scores to colleges
• Summer
• Take ACT/SAT
• Summer
• Take ACT/SAT

Summer jobs bring debate over what to do. For others, it is time to go back to their backbreaking boring job. Nothing is a big- Terrible quick fixes for Mother’s Day:

Gifts such as these cost little money and will show mom how much she is cared for. I think my mom appreciates the handmade gifts more than the ones that I buy. They seem to mean more to her," said freshman Lauren Dipert. When making these gifts, try picking one that will appeal to her interests. For example, if she enjoys running, try "Runner's World" or if she likes to be in the kitchen, try "Food & Wine". If all else fails, a trip to "Blithely Beautiful pink flowers are on display in the main office. (Bottom) Easy to use Cash Cowbook contains many delicious recipes, and Body Works can go a long way. Pick out a special fragrance like an over-done gift idea, but sending a bouquet of lilies to a work place is a pleasant surprise for a mom. To compsure the flowers, one can make an impromptu recipe book. This all requires a computer. Find some of her favorite recipes or old family dishes that have been passed down, and bind them together to make a nice change.

Preparing for the future: Essential measures to take

By Anjelica Oswald

Copy Editor

Going to college is a very important part of students lives. There are many things to do in order to prepare for this big change.

• Figure out what classes to take the next year.
• Submit scores to colleges
• College Applications
• Submit transcripts to colleges
• College visits
• Concentrate on sports
• College visits
• College Applications
• Improve GPA as much as possible
• Concentrate on sports
• Submit scores to colleges
• Submit scores to colleges
• Summer
• Take ACT/SAT
• Summer
• Take ACT/SAT

Summer jobs bring debate over what to do. For others, it is time to go back to their backbreaking boring job. Nothing is a big-

Trivia Question!

The answer to last month's question was "The "sneakiness" factor is that viewers may not realize they're getting a sales pitch, and that's the whole point. With DVR's coming up, lots of advertisers are getting used to the idea of product placement. "Product placement knocking out the advertisement competition"

2010-2011 Hi-Times Staff

Editor-in-chiefs: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz

Copy Editor Anjelica Oswald

Ads: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz Lauren Dipert

Advisor: Miss Sacket

Staff Writers: Jordan Bello Lauren Dipert Abby Felkes Sarah Fisher Jon Gardner Cole Kellogg Jorge Medina Kherson Numbreg Anjelica Oswald Alex Salwanchik Skiy Storke Tommy Snyder Jenny Szymkowski Courtney Wern Zach Winslett

By Jordan Bello

Staff Writer

Gone are the days of basic product advertising where a commercial dominated the marketing industry. Commercials are now short, sweet, and to the point. One of the more ways to advertise, besides commercials, is product placement. The concept of putting a product into a movie on purpose for the purpose of convincing someone to buy it is seen as sneaky, but with more and more people ignoring commercials, it can prove to be more effective at getting a message across.

It has been learned that viewers are more likely to see money-makers. Sponsors have to pay to advertise, and they make money back on sales. "Box office work."

The "sneakiness" factor is that viewers may not realize they're getting a sales pitch, and that's the whole point. With DVR's coming up, lots of advertisers are getting used to the idea of product placement. "Product placement knocking out the advertisement competition"

2010-2011 Hi-Times Staff

Editor-in-chiefs: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz

Copy Editor Anjelica Oswald

Ads: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz Lauren Dipert

Advisor: Miss Sacket

Staff Writers: Jordan Bello Lauren Dipert Abby Felkes Sarah Fisher Jon Gardner Cole Kellogg Jorge Medina Kherson Numbreg Anjelica Oswald Alex Salwanchik Skiy Storke Tommy Snyder Jenny Szymkowski Courtney Wern Zach Winslett

By Jordan Bello

Staff Writer

Gone are the days of basic product advertising where a commercial dominates the marketing industry. Commercials are now short, sweet, and to the point. One of the more ways to advertise, besides commercials, is product placement. The concept of putting a product into a movie on purpose for the purpose of convincing someone to buy it is seen as sneaky, but with more and more people ignoring commercials, it can prove to be more effective at getting a message across.

It has been learned that viewers are more likely to see money-makers. Sponsors have to pay to advertise, and they make money back on sales. "Box office work."

The "sneakiness" factor is that viewers may not realize they're getting a sales pitch, and that's the whole point. With DVR's coming up, lots of advertisers are getting used to the idea of product placement. "Product placement knocking out the advertisement competition"

2010-2011 Hi-Times Staff

Editor-in-chiefs: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz

Copy Editor Anjelica Oswald

Ads: Jordan Bello Samantha Holifitz Lauren Dipert

Advisor: Miss Sacket

Staff Writers: Jordan Bello Lauren Dipert Abby Felkes Sarah Fisher Jon Gardner Cole Kellogg Jorge Medina Kherson Numbreg Anjelica Oswald Alex Salwanchik Skiy Storke Tommy Snyder Jenny Szymkowski Courtney Wern Zach Winslett

By Jordan Bello

Staff Writer

Gone are the days of basic product advertising where a commercial dominates the marketing industry. Commercials are now short, sweet, and to the point. One of the more ways to advertise, besides commercials, is product placement. The concept of putting a product into a movie on purpose for the purpose of convincing someone to buy it is seen as sneaky, but with more and more people ignoring commercials, it can prove to be more effective at getting a message across.

It has been learned that viewers are more likely to see money-makers. Sponsors have to pay to advertise, and they make money back on sales. "Box office work."

The "sneakiness" factor is that viewers may not realize they're getting a sales pitch, and that's the whole point. With DVR's coming up, lots of advertisers are getting used to the idea of product placement. "Product placement knocking out the advertisement competition"